

Rani's story

Support work runs in the family for Rani, whose mum was a support worker for around 20 years, and seeing first-hand how rewarding her mum found the role inspired Rani to follow in her footsteps. For Rani, helping people achieve their goals and learning new skills every day ensures she goes home with a smile on her face.

“Support work is the best thing in the world and I literally couldn't dream of doing something else. This has been my life since I was 17 and has been something I've wanted to do since I was young because my mum was a care worker.

“Every day you go home with a sense of achievement and a sense that you've done something important because you know that, without you, that person might not have been able to do the things they've done that day - and that's amazing.

“The moment I walked through the doors at Hft I thought, this is the place I'm going to be in for the rest of my life, and that's what I intend to do - everyday there's more for me to learn.”

If you think support work might be right for you, visit www.hft.org.uk/jobs and find your place with Team Hft.