

Hft modern slavery statement

2022 - 2023

Introduction

This modern slavery statement applies to Hft for our financial year 1 April 2022 to 31 March 2023.

The statement sets out our actions to understand all potential modern slavery risks related to our organisation and to put in place steps aimed at ensuring that there is no slavery or human trafficking in our people, operations or supply chains.

Definitions

Hft considers that the words ‘modern slavery’ cover:

- Human trafficking.
- Forced work, through mental or physical threat.
- Being owned or controlled by an employer through mental or physical abuse or the threat of abuse.
- Being dehumanised, treated as a commodity or being bought or sold as property.
- Being physically constrained, or having unlawful and unwelcome restrictions placed on freedom of movement.

Hft’s organisational structure

Hft is a national charity supporting people with learning disabilities and their families. We believe that people with a learning disability should be able to live within their communities with all the choice and support they need to live the best life possible.

Since Hft’s review of our strategy in 2021/2, we’ve focused on delivering our three strategic aims - to provide the best life for people we support, to deliver excellent homes, and to modernise our services to provide strong, sustainable services accessible by people with learning disabilities.

We have a geographical presence throughout England and also in North Wales. The majority of our workforce are either frontline support workers, or other frontline operational staff. We also have Central Support Services staff who are either based at our Head Office in Bristol, work regionally or work from home.

Hft's operations

We recognise that people with learning disabilities can be at greater risk from modern slavery as they may be targeted because of their disabilities. It is vitally important to us that the people we support do not become victims of modern slavery and that they live the best lives possible.

Care Quality Commission

As a residential and community services provider regulated by the Care Quality Commission, we are independently monitored, inspected and rated to make sure we meet fundamental standards of quality and safety.

We also have the following internal policies, procedures and practices to help keep the people we support free from modern slavery:

Fusion Model of Support

Underpinning our support work is our Fusion Model of Support:

The model is based on Person-Centred Active Support (PCAS). PCAS is a way of supporting people so that they can actively participate in meaningful pursuits and relationships. As a result, the people we support have more control over their lives and they experience greater levels of inclusion, independence and choice. Our Fusion Model of Support makes a significant contribution to protecting the people we support from the risks of modern slavery.

Hft's operational and people policies

We recognise that colleagues, relief and agency workers and volunteers can be both victims of modern slavery and they also play a vital role in keeping the people we support safe.

One of our core values is we have the courage to listen, speak up and act; and we encourage all colleagues and people we support with concerns to speak out over any aspect of our work and express those concerns.

We have a wide range of operational and people policies and procedures which contribute to keeping our people free from modern slavery:

- Agencies supplying care staff
- Bribery
- Bullying & harassment
- Capability
- Code of Conduct
- Corporate social responsibility
- Criminal records checks
- Disciplinary
- Disclosure and barring
- Diversity & equality
- Establishing the right to work
- First aid
- Fraud
- Friends & family at work
- Gifts to staff
- Giving & seeking a reference
- Grievance
- Health & safety
- Key holding
- Misuse of drugs & alcohol
- Operational standards
- Recruitment & selection
- Relationships at work
- Review of relief workers' registration
- Social media guidance
- Use of social media
- Staffing
- Supervision & appraisal
- Supporting people with their money
- Use of phones & recording devices
- Visitors
- Volunteer management
- Volunteers handbook
- Whistleblowing
- Work experience
- Working time

Hft's supply chains

To deliver our services we purchase goods and services from the UK and abroad. Our main supply chains include staffing, software, products, services and food.

Our suppliers vary in size and type, however what is consistent is our desire to ensure our suppliers are ethical and understand their responsibilities regarding modern slavery and human trafficking.

Generally, suppliers at Hft can be categorised as either national or local suppliers.

The following list is non-exhaustive, but is provided for descriptive purposes of the range and type of suppliers Hft use:

- Agencies to source staff on a local basis.
- Supply chains, such as providers of regular office supplies, on an annual contract.
- Single use suppliers, such as for training or catering for an event.
- Specialist contractors for building and estates development and management.

The services of suppliers are procured via our terms and conditions of purchase, which specify the contractual relationship between Hft and the supplier and come into effect on the date of the purchase order.

The terms and conditions on the purchaser order include:

- A commitment to better understanding our supply chains and working to achieve greater transparency and responsibility towards people working in them.
- With effect from 2023-4, suppliers are required to submit a Modern Slavery Statement (if they have an annual turnover of £36m or more) for consideration and annually thereafter.
- A requirement that Hft suppliers shall ensure they are not directly engaged in slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labour, or human trafficking. In addition, that Hft suppliers shall take reasonable and proportionate steps, having regard to the nature of their business, to identify potential high and medium risks of slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour, or human trafficking in their supply chains and do all that is practical to mitigate against these risks.
- To the extent it is commercially practicable suppliers should use their buying power to influence their suppliers from such prohibited activities.

Supplier due diligence

We undertake due diligence when considering taking on new suppliers. Hft does not knowingly support or do business with any organisation that we know, or suspect, to engage in slavery or human trafficking. Instead, at Hft we will seek to work with suppliers who implement modern slavery prevention and awareness raising measures.

We have also created an assured provider list of agencies we use for additional frontline support staff and, on occasion, for agencies that we may also engage with to meet interim demands for resource whilst we are recruiting permanent staff.

We have the following policies, procedures and practices to help keep our supply chains free of modern slavery:

- Agencies Supplying Care Staff
- Fraud
- Purchase orders
- Procurement
- Whistleblowing

Hft's potential exposure to modern slavery

Considering the measures Hft takes to protect our operations, people and supply chain from the risks of modern slavery, we consider our potential exposure to be relatively limited overall.

We consider the main potential for exposure to lie in the purchase of goods from overseas.

We have not, to our knowledge, conducted any business with another organisation which has been found to have relied on modern slavery for goods or services. We will continue to be vigilant and if a compliance breach is identified, we will act promptly, involve the appropriate lead agencies and feedback lessons learnt to minimise the risk of an incident occurring again.

Hft has taken the following steps to ensure that modern slavery is not taking place:

- Reviewing contracts to include termination if suppliers are or are suspected, to be involved in modern slavery.
- Measures in place to identify and assess potential risks in our supply chains.
- Undertaking impact assessments of our services on potential instances of slavery.
- Creating action plans to address risk to modern slavery.

Responsibility

Responsibilities for our anti-slavery initiatives are as follows:

- Policies and procedures: The Executive Board is accountable for putting in place and reviewing operational, people and supply chain policies and procedures.
- Risk assessments: The Executive Board is responsible for identifying and mitigating or removing risks that are related to modern slavery.
- Investigations/due diligence: Line management and Hft's safeguarding team are responsible for conducting investigations in relation to known or suspected instances of modern slavery.

Learning and Development

We offer all staff training on modern slavery. This is also regarded as an integral part of our face-to-face training on safeguarding. The training includes a group discussion about the types of abuse and how to spot tell-tale signs of behaviours that indicate abuse. In addition to this, we continue to raise awareness of this issue via the implementation of mandatory e-learning.

Our modern slavery e-learning training includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- How to identify the signs of modern slavery and human trafficking.
- What initial steps should be taken if slavery or human trafficking is suspected?
- How to escalate potential modern slavery concerns within Hft.
- What external help is available.

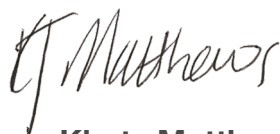

Summary

The Trustees and Executive Board recognise their accountabilities for certifying that this policy statement and its objectives are implemented. This policy statement will be reviewed on an annual basis with the next review due by 31 March 2024.

This statement was agreed on 22 March 2023 by Hft Executive Board and approved on 24 March 2023 by the Hft Board of trustees.

Amanda Bunce
Chair of Trustees

Kirsty Matthews
Chief Executive Officer

